DETAILED ACTION

Receipt is acknowledged of the amendment filed 03/06/2008.

The rejection of the claims under 35 USC 102(b) over the tradename Siccaprotect is hereby withdrawn.

The following is a new rejection of the claims:

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 3, 18, 20-22, 24, 36-40, 43-45, 47-51, 54-58, 60-66, 68-71, are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Siccaprotect in view of WO 98/32421 (WO'421) (reference AK on PTOL-1449 filed 03/23/2006) .

Siccaprotect™ is disclosed as containing dexamphenol and is used in eye drops compositions for contact lenses (see D1-D4). The composition appears to also contain polyvinyl alcohol and benzalkonium chloride as a preservative used against gram-positive and gram-negative bacteria (see D1 and D2). The percentage of dexamphenol is higher than 1% (see newly cited Siccaprotect material from UesaPharm). Tradename information does not address the issue of the kind of contact lens to be disinfected, or the demulcents such as HPC or HPMC.

However, whether the contact lens is soft, hard , daily or extended, there is no reason why one of ordinary skill would not expect beneficial results from the use of dexamphenol on any lens product. Barring a showing of unexpected and/or unusual results, the use of dexamphenol would be expected to provide similar preservative results on any lens.

While the Siccaprotect trade papers do not address the use of demulcents other than polyvinyl alcohol, WO'421 discloses the use of any number of demulcents which are considered equivalents to polyvinyl alcohol for use in eye drops (see page 1, third paragraph, HPC, HPMC and polyvinyl pyrrolidone are specifically recited. It should be noted that NaCl and EDTA are also recited for use in such compositions at page 7, Example II., Therefore, it would have been well within the skill of the ordinary practitioner to use any number of demulcents commonly used in lens care products such as HPC, HPMC, PVP or PVA with a reasonable expectation of beneficial results.

As such, the instant claims would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of invention given the teachings of Siccaprotect in view of WO'421.

Claims 23, 52, 59, 67 and 72 are objected to as dependent upon a rejected base claim.

WO 02/055118 (reference AC on 1449 dated 12/28/2004) is cited for its teaching that dexamphenol is effective in treating all contact lens forms (see page 5, paragraph 2).
